

Lessons learned from PATPA and FAO's experience

- The ICA process for BURs has helped countries to improve their BURs and strengthened their national institutional arrangements.
- The more actively countries have participated in the ICA, the more beneficial it has been for them, e.g. with regards to experience exchange.
- Findings and suggestions in the review reports can be helpful in discussions with higher management levels around required improvements, e.g. where additional team members, capacity-building or specific studies are needed.
